

David Lorah, MD

Family Medicine

“In medical school I found I liked everything from pediatrics to cardiology to women’s health care. I chose family medicine as a specialty because it provides a wide breadth of experience that incorporates all of these things. For me, it is the perfect combination of the art and science of medicine. I’ve found every patient has a unique story to tell. My job is to listen to that story and to help them make the right choices and decisions about their health.”
